It was finally decided by the commit-tee that it would be directly against the provisions of the ordinance in relation to vaults to allow Mrs. Clator to build a vault with plank lining. Then the question was why had the Health Offi-cer ordered Mrs. Clator not to build a dry vault. The ancient ordinance books were again consulted, and the commit-tee came to the conclusion that it would be perfectly proper for the petitioner to have a dry vault constructed, but then there was Dr. Garrison's order to the contrary in the way. Some one asked there was Dr. Garrison's order to the contrary in the way. Some one asked where the Doctor was on this occasion and this brought forth some spirited remarks from Dr. Campbell; he intimated that after the action in Council the night before the Health Officer might be expected to do just about as he pleased. Mr. Pollock then wanted to know where the City Solicitor was—he might be able to explain the situation and post the committee as to what its province was in relation to granting the request of Mrs. Clator to build a dry vault.

Dr. Campbell replied that it wouldn't make much difference what the Solicitor might say—that his opinions were not worth much.

lying in a ravine above Toronto. The train was stopped and the body taken aboard and brought to this city, where it was identified as Wallace Cullis a young man about 23 years of age and a member of Patton's band. He was one of the striking potters at the Steubenville Fottery and in company with three other companions bearded a freight train at 2 o'clock this morning to go to Wellsville, where he had secured a job in the pottery there. He was not on the same car as the other boys and they did not miss him until they got to Wellsville, It is supposed that he went to sleep and felt between the cars, as his body was horribly mangled. Both legs were cut off, his felt sur pulled from its socket and his body almost out in twain. His remains were taken to Linday & Shannon's undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. He leaves a brother George and a sister, Mrs. John Lawson. The coroner will hold an inquest this evening.

No bones were broken, but his injuries are such thet he will be laid off for a week or ten'days at the hospital. Cornelius Schwilm, another Pan Handle brakeman, was setting brakes near Philadel'phia Road yesterday afternoon, when the brake broke and he was thrown from the top of the car.
